Marginally Low Copper Causes Lesions of the Midbrain in Animal Models: The Implications for Man
J Joseph, T Alleyne, A Adogwa
There were pathological changes in the midbrain of young sheep and rabbit with low serum copper.
- 487 Immunological Evidence Supporting the Use of Extracts From Boehmeria jamaicensis Urb for Treating the Common Cold and Sinus Infections
LAD Williams, JU Igietseme, JA Whittaker, MF Smikle, YA Bailey-Shaw, EN Barton
*Extracts of Boehmeria jamaicensis stimulated gamma interferon and may have implications for the treatment of the common cold.*
- 491 Component Structure of the SF-36 in Jamaicans with Sickle Cell Disease
M Asnani, G Lipps, M Reid
Quality of life measures tend to be greatly affected by cross-cultural differences between populations. The study has shown that component structure of a commonly utilized generic scale to measure quality of life is quite distinct in the Jamaican population with Sickle Cell Disease.
- 498 Does Group B Streptococcal Infection Contribute Significantly to Neonatal Sepsis in Antigua and Barbuda?
TC Martin, J Adamson, T Dickson, E DiGiantomasso, C Nesbitt
Universal screening of all pregnant women for Group B streptococcal infection has been recommended in the United States of America because of high neonatal infection rates (1.7 to 4 per 1000) and vaginal carriage rates (15 to 40%). Such screening may not be necessary in Antigua and Barbuda with a neonatal infection rate of 0.4/1000 and vaginal carriage rate of 2–9%.
- 502 Maternal Mortality in Maroua Provincial Hospital, Cameroon (2003–2005)
PM Tebeu, P Ngassa, L Kouam, AL Major, JN Fomulu
The maternal mortality from a provincial hospital in Maroua City, Cameroon, was high at 1266 per 100 000 live births. Intervention strategies are required to reduce this.
- 508 Pre-adolescent Gunshot Injuries: Anatomy of a Jamaican Problem

Gun violence has led to increasing numbers of pre-adolescent children being treated for gunshot injuries. We explore the circumstances and patterns of these injuries, making recommendations for paediatric firearm injury prevention and management.

514 Mesh Tuck Repair of Ventral Hernias of the Abdomen: A New, Simplified Technique for Sublay Herniorrhaphy

JM East

A technique is described whereby mesh is tucked into the retro-myofascial plane for repair of ventral hernias, without the extensive and tedious dissection required for traditional retromuscular and pre-peritoneal mesh placement.

520 Sclerotherapy of Idiopathic Hydroceles and Epididymal Cysts: A historical comparison trial of 5% phenol versus tetracycline

JM East, D DuQuesnay

Two separate trials of sclerotherapy of scrotal cysts were performed, using 5% phenol-in-water and tetracycline solution respectively. The effectiveness, efficacy and complications of the treatments are analyzed and compared.

526 Natamycin Treatment of Experimental Candida albicans induced Keratomycosis in Rabbits

M Saleem, A Rahman, N Afza

Natamycin has a significant effect against candida albicans in treating experimental keratomycosis

530 Effect of Meloxicam on Postoperative Pain Relief after Inguinal Hernia repair with Local Anaesthesia

O Kurukahvecioglu, A Karamercan, B Ege, H Koksall, Z Anadol, E Tezel, E Ersoy

Single dose oral meloxicam usage, before inguinal hernia repair under local anaesthesia, reduces the severity of pain and improves patient comfort.

534 Falls and Fall Prevention in the Elderly: The Jamaican Perspective

K James, D Eldemire-Shearer, J Gouldbourne, C Morris

Falls in the elderly are not rare and most are preventable.
